

GULF HOUSE RESORT

This trop-rock ballad is a true story about a vacation house that sits on the Gulf of Mexico down in the Florida Keys. When a nor'easter blows through, the weather can change rapidly. It can go from hot and humid to cool and rainy in a matter of hours. When a person from up north comes south and experiences both the beauty of a tropical paradise and a nor'easter at the same time, it can be quite a moving experience. This song is the story of such an occurrence.

"I've been through four seasons in four hours
There's nothing else new to report
You can find me down in paradise
Staying at the Gulf House Resort"
