

HIGH WATER

This is a very special song written for a close friend about her husband. Sometimes a guy has to find his way back into a relationship after he gets a little lost. He knows she's worth it. He'll have to walk through High Water to get to hallowed ground. I hope he makes it. A pop ballad by design, this' song reminds me of J.D. Souther's 'New Kid In Town'.

“Every day is a lonely day when you’re traveling on your own
Every night is a lonely night when you’re far away from home
I think of you and realize that you’re not around
And I will walk through High Water to get to hallowed ground”
